English Theater School Projects

We all know the problem. The students need to learn English, but sometimes they seem unmotivated or frightened to speak in class. Teachers and students both become frustrated. In the worst of cases, the interest in English as a school subject wanes.

Give your students (and yourself) a new perspective – set up an English Theater School Project with the Wiesbaden Performing Arts Center (WPAC). These week-long sessions involve voice and movement training, basic acting techniques as well as lots of fun – all in ENGLISH. You can work on an existing script or the students can develop their own texts. These projects can take place at your school or at the WPAC. The week ends with a completely staged performance.

So, don't be shy – give it a try...your students will surprise you!
